Waiting Youth

Jessica, Zest for Life and Dogs

Jessica is not bashful when it comes to spreading the word about the need for teen adoptions. "Regardless of our age we still need love and support. Everybody is entitled to their hugs, kisses and love," says Jessica. At 15, Jessica is a vivacious teen with a zest for life. She enjoys playing Dance Dance Revolution, likes to sing and particularly loves dogs and hopes to have a dog or cat in her adoptive home. Jessica lists "Twilight" and "Marley & Me" among her favorite movies and enjoys staying active by swimming and roller skating. Jessica is a typical teen who likes to hang out with her friends and watch movies and describes herself as "strong, well-minded and hysterical."

As for having siblings in her adoptive home, she says, "I would love to have younger siblings because of my keen kindness towards younger children and people with disabilities." She is open to older siblings. However the most important thing for Jessica is to find a family that will fully commit to becoming her forever family. Jessica wants a family that possesses a balance of patience, structure and an understanding that there is a process but that she is well worth it.

A Poem by Jessica

I am from dancing in the rain to the music of the thunder.

I am from the Heaven above with God and Angels of the world.

I am from rap and R.B.

I am from shopping until I drop.

I am from glowing purple.

I am from living wild, like the animals that I love.

I am from learning from my mistakes and succeeding in academics.

I am from a world of kids who are waiting for adoptive families.

For information about adopting Jessica, please contact Yvette Giles at 763-447-0141 or Catie Stokes at 612-348-7480.

Adoptees Have Answers (AHA) Launches

April 2010

Minnesota Adoption Resource Network (MARN) proudly debuts AHA, Adoptees Have Answers, a unique program funded by the Minnesota Department of Human Services, to provide adoptee-to-adoptee training connections and resources. AHA supports a life experience that is often mythologized, pathologized and romanticized but rarely understood. AHA relies on new research findings that, in the evolving field of adoption, adopted persons are the experts. As MARN celebrates 30 years of advocacy in the state with a rich history of "firsts" in adoption, the premiere of AHA is both fitting and welcomed.

-Mary Martin Mason, Minnesota Adoption Resource Network.

For more information about the AHA program, please contact Program Coordinator, Julia Decker at 612-746-5133 or jdecker@mnadopt.org.

AHA Webinar: Adoptees Have Answers: Enlisting the Experts with Adam Pertman

France and Spain Provide Adoptee-to-Adoptee Support

April 2010

La Voz de los Adoptados is a national organization of domestic and international adoptees created five years ago in France, joined by adoptees in Spain in 2009. Like AHA - Adoptees Have Answers, a new adoptee-centric program launched recently by MARN, the overseas counterpart includes blogs and a website to allow adoptees to express their viewpoints. The aim is to provide a means for exchange and support for adopted persons.

Russia Suspends Adoptions after International Incident

April 2010

Russia, the third largest source of children to Americans adopting internationally, has stopped all adoptions in the wake of the Tennessee family putting their 7-year-old adopted son on a plane back to Russia. The child had a note in his backpack from Torry Hansen, adoptive mother that said, "I am sorry to say that for the safety of my family, friends and myself, I no longer wish to parent this child."

Adoptive parents as with parents by birth have no legal right to abandon their children. The case raises concerns about parents being prepared and capable of adopting institutionalized children, about incomplete histories provided to such parents, and about further traumatizing children when adoptions disrupt.

Adam Pertman, executive director of the Evan B. Donaldson Adoption Institute, in a New York Times interview said adoptive parents have the responsibility to seek help early. He said, "There is this weird lingering myth that love will conquer all. Guess what, it doesn't in biological families and it doesn't in adopted families."

To hear Adam Pertman in AHA webinar, join us on Thursday, April 22 from 12:00 PM to 1:30 PM (CDT). To learn more, click here.

Klobuchar Pushes for Russian Adoptions to Continue

Minnesota leads the country in the number of adoptions from Russia. In the wake of Russia suspending all adoptions, United States Senator Amy Klobuchar is lobbying the State Department to intervene on behalf of approximately 3,000 families already in process to adopt Russian children. Senator Klobuchar met with Minnesota families on Sunday, April 18, to hear their concerns. She is also working on legislation to support post adoption services as is provided through MN ADOPT and to provide information to families regarding children adopted from Russia.

CNN Reports Parents Overwhelmed During Transitions

April 2010

CNN reports that the adjustment time immediately following an international adoption can be challenging for new adoptive parents. Children from Eastern bloc orphanages may arrive with institutional damage and multiple diagnoses. Dr. Ronald Federici, a clinical neuropsychologist who works with adopted children, told CNN that the recent Russian case should encourage prospective parents to get educated and to seek counseling and support from adoption specialists.

Adoption Tax Credit Increases

April 2010

Effective as of this year, an adoption tax credit for $1,000 for all types of adoptions occurring after January 1, 2010 was enacted as part of the health care reform bill. Extended until the end of 2011, the tax credit is retroactive and the credit increases the total to $13,170 for tax year 2010.

The Adoption Tax Credit is mentioned on pages 903 and 906*

States Battle Fate of Baby Emma

April 2010

Virginia and Utah have issued opposing judicial decisions on whether a baby was legally or illegally taken from birth father, John Wyatt, who filed paperwork eight days after the baby's birth in his state of Virginia. Emma has been adopted by a Utah couple. Adoption attorney Joan Hollinger says of the case, "Utah laws make it virtually impossible for an out-of-state father to prevent the adoption of an out-of-wedlock child when the mother is determined to go forward."

Singer Walks Cross Country For Foster Youth

March 2010

On January 1, 2010, Jimmy Wayne, well-known country singer/songwriter started a public awareness campaign called Project Meet Me Halfway. The solo walk began at Monroe Harding Children's Home in Nashville, Tennessee and is heading halfway across America to the Home Base Youth Service in Phoenix, Arizona. His cross country trek spotlights how aged out teens/young adults on their 18th birthday will be released with no destination but homelessness.

Native American Journalist Publishes Memoir

April 2010

Award-winning Native American journalist Trace A. DeMeyer has published a memoir, One Small Sacrifice: Lost Children of the Indian Adoption Projects, an exposé on generations of American Indian children adopted by non-Indian families. DeMeyer started her research on adoptees in 2004, which led to the 227-page biography that includes congressional testimony, evidence of Indian Adoption Projects and how the Indian Child Welfare Act came to exist.

PSTD Identified in Birthmothers of the Past

March 2010

According to Karen Wilson-Buterbaugh, co-founder of Origins USA, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder is a common disorder in mothers who relinquished from 1945 to 1973, a time in which large numbers of unmarried women were secretly sent to maternity homes so that their children would be adopted. After World War II, pregnancy outside of marriage came to be pathologized by psychologists, psychiatrists, clergy and placing agencies. Birthmothers were removed from their babies immediately after birth, encouraged to forget the child, and provided no post-relinquishment counseling. Wilson-Buterbaugh cites common symptoms such as flashbacks, nightmares, anxiety, avoidance and phobias among the birth mothers.

Illinois Foster Youth Stay Longer, Fair Better

New research reports allowing foster youth to stay in care until they are 21 has resulted in positive outcomes. Researchers from the University of Washington and University of Chicago followed youth from foster systems in Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin over a 6-year period. Not surprising, many had profound struggles including unemployment, criminality, and unplanned pregnancies. Youth from Illinois fared better in essential categories, a state that extends the age for staying under state guardianship to 21. A 2008 law that matches state money with federal funding for states that extend foster care to 21 has so far only been utilized by Illinois, New York, Vermont and the District of Columbia.

Local Adoptee 'Hurdles' Through Life

April 2010

Mounds View senior, Kayla Sawtell was the second of three biologically unrelated black children adopted by Kim and Ron Sawtell, a white couple who raised two birth sons. From a young age Kayla was not shy about showing resentment towards her adoptive mother Kim, often responding 'You're not my real mom.' Kim acknowledges the comments hurt but realized it was just another battle in their long and painful war of wills.

By the time Kayla was in seventh grade, Kim got her involved in Mound's View track and field, a traditionally strong athletic program. Over the next few years Kayla's pleaded to quit, but Kim would not budge. By her sophomore year Kayla decided to make peace with her adoption and went on to win a Class 2A championship in the 100-meter hurdles and second in the 300-meter hurdles. Her talent on the track has earned Kayla a scholarship at Howard University, a historically black college in Washington D.C. Kayla says, "Now that I'm going off to college, I'm realizing how much I really love my mom," because "she kept me in track, and look where it got me."

Summer Camp for Adoptive and Foster Care Kids

Sarah and Travis Guida, founders of Family Foundation Minnesota, LLC knew being around children was something they were born to do. As foster and adoptive parents they understand the variety of issues facing their children. Beginning in June, the Guidas will host three sessions of Character Training Camp at Eagle Beach resort in northern Minnesota. The Character Training Center is a camp facility for adoptive children or children in the foster care system. The camp focuses on meeting the needs of children with attachment disorder, anxiety, abuse and neglect, ADHD, E/BD, learning disabilities, and other emotional needs. This is a 3 night/4 day camp with access to nature trails, basketball court, sand volleyball, tennis, shuffleboard, horseshoes, canoes, kayaks, playground equipment, a swimming pool and much more.

650 Will Move to ZERO in Minnesota if...

- Each Metro church pledged to find a family for a waiting child or sibling group.
- Corporations promoted adoption "in-house" through bulletin boards, kiosks and newsletters.
- Populations who have been identified as potential parents -- older career women, empty-nesters, communities of color -- were better targeted in recruitment.

- Bureaucracy and barriers to adopting were reduced (Call us at 612-861-7115 if you are encountering either!)
